Chapter 1 by alice hardaker

The sun was shining, the grass was still wet from the morning dew that had been left, Alice felt this was her chance to be free. She ran across the grass, her feet soaking up some of the dew, sprinting as fast as she could for the bus. She had to get it, something told her that her destiny was on the 471 to MidWood. She made it, just about, but the bus driver was a bit of a grump. He sat there with a look on his face that was telling her to hurry up and get the money for her ticket. She eventually got the money out and got on.

Alice then made her way to her seat, next to the window as she always preferred and awaited the bus to arrive in MidWood. After twenty minutes on the bus, it came to a sudden halt. It just stood still, everyone else was getting restless, Alice needed to be in MidWood. As she got up and made her way to the front to see what the hold up was, she was shocked by what she saw.
